

Contribution ID: 61

Type: not specified

Atmospheric lepton fluxes at high energies

Tuesday, 14 May 2013 15:10 (20 minutes)

Theoretical evaluations of the high energy atmospheric neutrino and muon fluxes from cosmic ray interactions with air nuclei rely on calculations of charmed particle production and decay. Presented here is a review of approaches to charm contributions to the atmospheric lepton fluxes, including dipole models and the parton model with QCD.

Primary author: Prof. RENO, Reno, Mary Hall (University of Iowa)

Co-authors: SARCEVIC, Ina (University of Arizona); ENBERG, Rikard (Uppsala University)

Presenter: Prof. RENO, Reno, Mary Hall (University of Iowa)

Session Classification: Neutrino Astrophysics II

Track Classification: Neutrino Astrophysics Parallel